II. Objectives and Evaluation (respond on one or more separate sheets):

Call ext. 3-0919 for a copy of "Guidelines for Requesting and Evaluating Core Courses" or visit the website at www.uh.edu/academics/corecurriculum.

A. How does the proposed course meet the appropriate Exemplary Educational Objectives (see Guidelines). Attach a syllabus and supporting materials for the objectives the syllabus does not make clear.

This course has always been writing intensive, involving initial and final drafts and a final research paper at the end of the semester, with faculty and sometimes peer feedback on paper drafts. This course provides a structure for the development of student writing on themes of modernity and urban processes through virtual and, in some cases, hard copy publication.

B. Specify the processes and procedures for evaluating course effectiveness in regard to its goals.
Students submit writing assignments, including weekly discussion postings throughout the semester and receive detailed feedback of their progress prior to submitting the final versions of their work. If necessary, additional support will be provided by the instructor either to individual students or the class as a whole in regard to research tools/methodologies and writing proficiency. This may include recommending consultation with writing center staff, subject librarians or technological support specialists. At the end, of the semester, students will be asked to self-evaluate the progress they have made in mastering the research, writing and evaluation and publication techniques needed for their work.

C. Delineate how these evaluation results will be used to improve the course.

Student feedback, as well as effectiveness of current assignments and support provided will be taken into consideration when the course is offered in subsequent semesters. Adjustments will be made if necessary to provide more effective instruction. The best student papers will appear on our URI webpage and thus become available as models for quality student work in subsequent classes.

SVP. Effective 5/2/08. Replaces all previous forms, which may no longer be used.

Special Policies – Academic Conduct

Plagiarism and Academic Honesty

All papers written for this class will be submitted by the due date through Turnitin, to prevent acts of advertent and inadvertent plagiarism.

Fundamentally, plagiarism is a deceit, an act of intellectual dishonesty that consists of passing off another’s words as one’s own. We understand that many students are still not aware that by not correctly citing the sources of their references, they are, in effect, plagiarizing from those sources. For this reason, we include the following statement from the MLA Style Manual:

Derived from the Latin plagiarius (‘kidnapper’ and also ‘plagiariist’ in the modern sense) plagiarism is defined by Alexander Lindley as “the false assumption of authorship: the wrongful act of taking the product of another person’s mind and presenting it as one’s own” (Plagiarism and Originality). Plagiarism may take the form of repeating another’s sentences as your own, paraphrasing someone else’s argument as your own or even presenting someone else’s line of thinking in the development of a thesis as though it were your own. In short, to plagiarize is to give the impression that you have written or thought something that you have in fact borrowed from another. Although a writer may use other persons’ words and thoughts, they must be acknowledged as such.

Please make certain that your work clearly acknowledges that of others. Sanctions for infractions of plagiarism are serious, and you are referred to the statement on Student Disciplinary Procedures that appears in the Graduate College Catalog. Academic dishonesty more generally is described at the website: http://www.uic.edu/depts/grad/regulations/index.shtml

Repetition of Papers Used in Other courses

Papers written for another class cannot be used –entirely or partially- to fulfill the requirements of a different course. This will be considered an act of academic dishonesty. If you want to incorporate some materials from a previous research paper, you need to get a written authorization from both professors, the one for whom the paper was written originally, and the professor of the current class. For example; if you wrote a paper on the role of female characters in War and Peace for a class on Tolstoy, and later on you want to re-use selected fragments of this work (i.e. for a paper on female characters in XIX century narrative), you must obtain consent from both professors. If you don’t comply with this regulation, you will be facing sanctions ranging from a lowering of the grade on the paper to failing the class.

Cell-free and wireless-free environment

Cell phone use of any kind is not permitted in class. If you use your laptop to take notes, you are not allowed to check your email during class, and must turn off your computer’s wireless connection. Your participation grade for the semester will be lowered for every instance of unauthorized text messaging or email checking, or if your phone rings during class. If there is a good reason why you must leave your phone on during class (such as a family or personal emergency), please tell me before class begins. Excessive use of your cell phone or other wireless devices constitutes disruptive behavior. It is disrespectful to other students and to me, and may lead to you being dropped from this course.
In order to reference this course’s Webct readings during class, you are encouraged to print them out or download them to your computer, or take detailed notes on them. You will not be allowed to use any wireless connections to retrieve these readings from our Webct site during class.

No wireless e-mail checking during class time will be allowed.

Failure to comply with these class rules may result in the violating student being instructed to leave the classroom. Students who continue to violate these rules may be sanctioned with disciplinary action, which may affect their course performance and success. In extreme cases, repetitive non-compliance could potentially result in withdrawal from the course.

Submitting Papers and Turnitin.com

All students must upload an electronic version of their paper to turnitin.com through webct Blackboard BEFORE the beginning of class on the paper’s due date. Papers uploaded to turnitin.com after class time will be considered late. You will not receive a grade for any paper until it is uploaded to turnitin.com.

Extensions for Papers

As a general rule, I only grant extensions for papers in cases of genuine emergency or for other extreme circumstances, and written documentation must be provided. Lack of preparation on your part does not constitute grounds for an extension.

Questions about Papers

Please come talk to me in my office hours if you need help developing ideas for your papers or structuring them. I am also happy to answer any specific questions that you may have about drafts of your papers. However, I will not read drafts of your papers and tell you what all of their problems are or if they are any good. This is unfair to every other student in this class, because it is asking me to unofficially grade your paper and allow you to resubmit it without any penalty to your grade.

I do not respond to questions about papers less than three days before their due dates; if you would like my help, you must plan ahead. I also do not respond to questions about papers on the day that they are returned to you. I am happy to discuss your grade with you, but you must first consider the comments I have already written on your paper. I put a lot of work into the comments that I write, and I do not like feeling that I have wasted my time and energy.

Email Policy

You are encouraged to email me with questions that you may have about our course material or requirements. However, I will not respond to emails asking for information that I have already announced in class or posted on our Webct site. Also, use common sense when sending me emails—I cannot give adequate responses to certain kinds of questions over email. Questions that require long responses should be asked either at the end of class or in my office hours, never by email. If you miss class, it is your responsibility to find out what was covered from other students or from me in my office hours. I do not respond to emails asking about what was covered in class.
Participation
Active participation is essential in this course, and it can take many forms. This includes arriving to class on time, taking notes, asking thoughtful questions, advancing good critical ideas in class discussions, and listening to the ideas of others. Participation in Web CT discussions with other classmates is also encouraged. Students who are disrespectful of others or disrupt class will receive low participation grades and may be dropped from the course. Disruptive behavior includes the use of cell phones or other electronic devices that may disrupt the class, leaving class before it ends, sleeping in class, doing homework for other classes, and exchanging notes with other students. If you have a legitimate reason for leaving class before it ends, you should notify me at the beginning of class and sit near an exit so that you can leave quietly and discreetly. I do not hesitate to drop students who are consistently disruptive. For the relevant university regulation, I refer you to the following statement from the on-line undergraduate catalog:

"An instructor may drop students for any one of the following reasons:

a. Lack of prerequisites or corequisites for the course listed in the latest catalog, but only through the last day for dropping courses. Students who have not met the prerequisites will be dropped without a tuition refund if the drop date is after the refund date. (Students who enroll in a course for which they are not eligible and then remain in the course knowingly misrepresent their academic records or achievements as they pertain to course prerequisites or corequisites and are in violation of the university's academic honesty policy.)

b. Excessive absences, but after the last day for dropping courses only with the approval of the dean of the college in which the course is being offered.

c. Causes that tend to disrupt the academic process (except those actions involving academic honesty, which come under the jurisdiction of the academic honesty policy), but after the last day for dropping courses only with the approval of the dean of the college in which the course is being offered. Disruptive behavior includes the use of or the failure to deactivate cell phones, pagers, and other electronic devices likely to disrupt the classroom. Students may make timely appeal of charges through the office of the dean of the college in which the course is taught.

Also consult the section of the Student Handbook entitled "Disciplinary Code" (p. 68), as well as the section of the on-line undergraduate catalog entitled "Maintaining a Learning Environment."

Attendance
You are allowed three unexcused absences in this course without any changes to your course grade. Your course grade will be lowered by one letter grade for every unexcused absence thereafter (i.e. if you have 5 unexcused absences and your course grade is a “B+,” it will be lowered to a “B-”). Documentation must be provided for an absence to be excused. Please note that absences resulting from things such as family vacations, job interviews, or work are rarely excused. I am also extremely skeptical of excuses pertaining to dead grandparents, recurring car trouble, oversleeping, and alarm clocks and watches that fail to work.
Textbooks and Electronic Alternatives

Requirements for Undergraduate Students:

Two Papers, minimum 1000 words or four pages each, counting 20% each of the final grade; a third paper, based on MCL's Urban Research initiative, of 1500-2000 words or 6-8 pages, and counting for 35% is due at the end of the semester, along with a final short summary statement (2-3 pages) focused on the final part of the course in relation to the whole, and counting 10%--plus 15% for attendance, participation and discussion in class.

For Graduate Students:
One regular paper and an Urban Space term paper of 15-20 pages.

Deadlines for Undergraduate Students

First Paper: Thursday, Sept. 17
Second Paper: Thursday, Oct. 22
Urban Space and final paper: Monday, Dec. 10.

Aside from the Urban Research Initiative project essay (see below), regular papers will cover material prior to the assignment day and must be made up of three short essays (at least 330 words each). Students will choose one question out of a group of questions. Paper topics will be mostly based on the textbooks. So read!

Grading Scale

| 93-100 A | 83-86 B | 73-76 C | 63-66 D |
| 90-92 A- | 80-82 B- | 70-72 C- | 60-62 D- |
| 87-89 B+ | 77-79 C+ | 67-69 D+ | 0-59 F |
Description of MCL’s Urban Research Initiative

MCL and WCL therein are developing an Urban Research Initiative, a project aimed at focusing on urban questions in Houston and the world. As part of the project, WCL 4351 will develop urban emphases in relation to our theme of the representation of war and conflict during the final weeks of this semester. Most important for you and your grades will be this semester’s URI assignment as described below.

Students will present a text from the list below to the class and submit a short written analysis focused on the text’s representation of urban space or urban problems. Although the exact nature of the project will vary according to the works, themes and issues chosen, all of these projects will consist of the following three parts:

1. Research
   Each student will conduct research into the city in which the text is set. A bibliography of all materials consulted will be submitted with the student’s written analysis.

2. In-class Presentations
   Each student will analyze how the text's urban setting(s) shapes its story, its characters, a viewer’s experience, or a specific theme or issue that is relevant to the overall course. Students will incorporate any important or relevant findings from their research into these presentations, and receive feedback from their peers.

3. Written Analysis
   All students will submit a short written analysis based on their presentation. The best of these will be posted on the MCL website.
