List the student learning outcomes for the course (Statements of what students will know and be able to do as a result of taking this course. See appended hints for constructing these statements):

1. Students will demonstrate the understanding of the course readings as expressions of individual and human values within an historical and social context.
2. Students will critically analyze the social roles of intellectuals and common people in the first half of the 20th century of China.
3. Students will express their original ideas and viewpoints analytically, clearly, and coherently.

Component Area for which the course is being proposed (check one):

- Communication
- Mathematics
- Science
- Language, Philosophy, & Culture
- Creative Arts
- Life & Physical Sciences
- American History
- Government/Political
- Social & Behavioral Science
- Component Area Option

Competency areas addressed by the course (refer to appended chart for competencies that are required and optional in each component area):

- Critical Thinking
- Communication Skills
- Empirical & Quantitative Skills
- Teamwork
- Social Responsibility
- Personal Responsibility

Because we will be assessing student learning outcomes across multiple core courses, assessments assigned in your course must include assessments of the core competencies. For each competency checked above, indicate the specific course assignment(s) which, when completed by students, will provide evidence of the competency.
Critical Thinking:

Critical thinking skills are assessed through closed book tests and quizzes, an oral presentation, home assignments, and a term paper. Here is a sample: students will write a five-page paper that asks them to analyze the role of Chinese intellectuals in the early years of the twentieth century, and their relationship with the working class, by presenting the evidence from the texts and analyzing the evidence from the perspectives of traditional values and societal infrastructural operations.

Sample paper assignment. Students are asked to address two of the following themes in their paper.

1. The role of the intellectual in the early years of the twentieth century.
2. The struggle for political institutional reform.
3. The May Fourth Movement.
4. The Vernacular/Literary Movement.
5. Conflict between innovation and tradition in all areas of Chinese thought.
6. The mutation, adaptation, and survival of traditional Chinese philosophy in the lives of individuals, the family, and society.
7. The struggle for democracy and individuality.

Students should consider these questions when address the themes:

CHINESE TRADITION/HISTORY

1. What are the important concepts that Confucius proposed for the government? How should a government function?
2. What are the substantial contents of RITES and BENEVOLENCE?
3. Who is the First Emperor of the Qin Dynasty?
4. Who is Sun Yatsen?
5. What is the literary revolution/Pai-hua movement? Who proposed it and participated in it? And New Youth?

6. What is the May Fourth Movement? What is its significance?

Students may consider the following questions when addressing the themes.

CHINESE TRADITION/HISTORY

1. What are the important concepts that Confucius proposed for the government? How should a government function?

2. What are the substantial contents of RITES and BENEVOLENCE?

3. What is the literary revolution/Pai-hua movement? Who proposed it and participated in it? And New Youth?

6. What is the May Fourth Movement? What is its significance?

PREFACE TO CALL TO ARMS & THE TRUE STORY OF AH Q

1. What is Lu Xun's famous metaphor of an "iron house"? What are the implications of this metaphor on Chinese intellectuals?

2. Please evaluate the "means of winning a psychological victory" that Ah Q used frequently when he was defeated. Your analysis may be from the perspectives of an ordinary person like Ah Q, or of the Chinese government in relation to foreign countries.

3. Analyze the people's attitudes to the revolutionaries, their participation to the 1911 Revolution, and to the execution parade of Ah Q (e.g. p. 91; pp. 98-112).

4. Why has "The True Story of Ah Q" proved a great impact on modern Chinese literature and new literary movements? (In relation to the Western influence on Lu Xun, May Fourth movement, the responsibility of Chinese intellectuals, the literary significance of the writing.)

KONG YI JI & THE NEW YEAR'S SACRIFICE

1. Who/What killed Kong Yi Ji? And provide your supporting arguments.

2. What are "the profound questions of human existence" raised by Xianglin Sao? Why did the narrator feel guilty for his answers to the question? What are the implications of this plot?

Readings 2 and 3 (L. Lee & M. Anderson)

1. Evaluate Mao's comment on Lu Xun.

2. Compare three narrators in Ah Q, Kong yi ji, and the New Year's sacrifice. Compare their roles and functions in the stories. What is special to Lu Xun's narration in the three stories that we read?

3. Please analyze the two themes in Lu Xun's novels: the victimization of the peasant and the role of the intellectual in Chinese society. What is Lu Xun's attitude toward these two themes? (Ref. M. Anderson: p. 37)
4. In what ways is Lu Xun a modern writer (his significant contributions to modern Chinese literature)? Analyze Lu Xun's writings in terms of purpose, content, and style. Your argument needs to be supported by evidence from the stories by Lu Xun.

5. Lu Xun is well known for the techniques of symbolism, narrative, and sarcasm/irony in his fictional writings. Please make comments on and provide examples of each of the techniques from the three stories we read.

Reading 4 (R. Chow, Modernity and Narration in feminine detail)

1. Compare and analyze Xiang-Lin Sao, Rui-chueh, Ming-feng, and Qin, in the aspects of social/family status, education, their value and rebellion to tradition and rules, their personalities, etc. Can you think of the reasons why they are different? In what ways are they victimized?

FAMILY

1. Please analyze the nature of filial piety. Your argument should be based on evidence from Family.

2. What does Family symbolize? In what way does it operate politically and economically? What is wrong with this structure?

Communication Skills:
Communication skills are assessed through closed book tests and quizzes, an oral presentation, home assignments, and a term paper. In the same five-page paper as above, students will demonstrate their ability to communicate effectively.

Inclusion in the core is contingent upon the course being offered and taught at least once every other academic year. Courses will be reviewed for renewal every 5 years.

The department understands that instructors will be expected to provide student work and to participate in university-wide assessments of student work. This could include, but may not be limited to, designing instruments such as rubrics, and scoring work by students in this or other courses. In addition, instructors of core courses may be asked to include brief assessment activities in their course.

Course Description:
Welcome to this WebCT course! The syllabus, required and reserved readings, learning materials, power point presentations of Supplementary Background Information, Course Notes, Study Guide / Assignments, Suggested Topics, are all on-line for your easy access. The course requires that you have a WebCT ID and access to the Internet.

This course provides an understanding of modern China through literary writings. Readings are selected from political, economic, social, and literary perspectives to help students develop their literary critiques and intellectual inquiry. All readings are in English translation. No previous knowledge of Chinese language is required.

The course covers three periods. The first period commences in the year 1919. The May Fourth Movement of 1919 launched a new wave of criticism against Confucian philosophy and Chinese traditions. Writers such as Lu Xun explored the social dynamics of contemporary Chinese society, including the changes taking place in the class structure, the conflicts between the old and the new, between East and West. The second period covers the years from the late 1920s to the 1940s, when Ba Jin, Lao She and others focused their attention on the lives of ordinary Chinese and the oppressed elements of the society. The third period starts from the year of 1949 to 1976. Literature in this period is greatly influenced by politics. Since the purpose of literature is supposed to serve the needs of politics, the direction of literature changes according to the political movement. Readings for this period is selected from Mao Ze-Dong.

Thematically, the course will examine such topics as the following:
1. The role of the intellectual in the early years of the twentieth century.
2. The struggle for political institutional reform.
3. The May Fourth Movement.
4. The Vernacular/Literary Movement.
5. Conflict between innovation and tradition in all areas of Chinese thought.
6. The mutation, adaptation, and survival of traditional Chinese philosophy in the lives of individuals, the family, and society.
7. The struggle for democracy and individuality.

Cr. 3. (3-0). Prerequisite: ENGL 1304. Taught in English. May not apply as foreign language credit. Readings of the most important literary works from the 1919 May 4th Movement to the present.
