- ☐ Completed CBM003 Add/Change Form with Catalog Description
- ☐ Syllabus

List the student learning outcomes for the course (Statements of what students will know and be able to do as a result of taking this course. See appended hints for constructing these statements):

Students will be able to analyze works of literature, painting, film, and use these sources to support their understanding of major global/local development and conflicts.

Students will be able to demonstrate a familiarity with history of colonialism as it affected various regions in the world.

Students will be able to identify, evaluate and analyze the consequences of colonialism for the present day.

Students will be able to communicate effectively their understanding of the relationship of literature and art the concept of “the Other.”

Students will explore issues of social and personal responsibility in class and in writings on how cultures, traditions and histories outside the Western tradition can assist them in developing intercultural competence.

Component Area for which the course is being proposed (check one):

☐ Communication
☐ Mathematics
☐ Language, Philosophy, & Culture
☐ Creative Arts
☐ Life & Physical Sciences
☐ American History
☐ Government/Political Science
☐ Social & Behavioral Science
☐ Component Area Option

Competency areas addressed by the course (refer to appended chart for competencies that are required and optional in each component area):

v.5/10/12
Because we will be assessing student learning outcomes across multiple core courses, assessments assigned in your course must include assessments of the core competencies. For each competency checked above, indicate the specific course assignment(s) which, when completed by students, will provide evidence of the competency. Provide detailed information, such as copies of the paper or project assignment, copies of individual test items, etc. A single assignment may be used to provide data for multiple competencies.

Critical Thinking:
Students will write a 3400 word paper in which they will analyze particular texts and relate them to broader questions concerning the different regions of the world that we study and the impact of colonialism on these regions.

This paper will demonstrate the students’ progression in the area of critical thinking. With the professor’s approval they choose a topic that is relevant to the course trajectory.

Communication Skills:
This will be addressed in the final 3400 word paper – they will show they are able to communicate effectively.

Empirical & Quantitative Skills:
NA

Teamwork:
NA

Social Responsibility:
- This will be demonstrated in their group project as they see the past effects of colonialism being played out in our current global political situation. Social responsibility will also be addressed in how they are responsible to each other as a group when they work on the group presentation. Their presentation is 20% of their semester grade.

Personal Responsibility:
In the final 3400 word paper and the group project students will explore issues of personal responsibility.

Will the syllabus vary across multiple sections of the course?  XYes  No
If yes, list the assignments that will be constant across sections:

v.5/10/12
Each section will have a group presentation and at least five 1200 word essays. In addition a final research paper of 3400 words will be required as a final project. This takes the place of a final exam.

Inclusion in the core is contingent upon the course being offered and taught at least once every other academic year. Courses will be reviewed for renewal every 5 years.

The department understands that instructors will be expected to provide student work and to participate in university-wide assessments of student work. This could include, but may not be limited to, designing instruments such as rubrics, and scoring work by students in this or other courses. In addition, instructors of core courses may be asked to include brief assessment activities in their course.

v.5/10/12
World Cultures Through Literature & Art

Course Description

This course explores local/global dynamics through works of literature, art, and film. We will investigate how people around the world represent the experience of living locally while being deeply connected to other places on the globe. Themes of the course include empire, identity, transnationalism, globalization, diaspora, representation, and environment. We will analyze the history and diverse social experiences of these issues in order to understand them as key aspects of contemporary life.

Course Goals

* Students will be able to analyze works of literature, painting, film, and use these sources to support their understanding of major global/local development and conflicts.
* Students will be able to demonstrate a familiarity with history of colonialism as it affected various regions in the world.
* Students will be able to identify, evaluate and analyze the consequences of colonialism for the present day.
* Students will be able communicate effectively their understanding of the relationship of literature and art and the concept of “the Other.”
* Students will explore issues of social and personal responsibility in class and in writings on how cultures, traditions and histories outside the Western tradition can assist them in developing intercultural competence.

Updated: 9/26/11
Short essays
You will write 4 different types of short essays on the topic assigned, using course sources to support your analysis and conclusions. You may also use relevant references to current events as well as examples from your own experiences. Essays will be graded for thesis/argument, composition, grammar, citations/bibliography, and use of course sources. We will review essay composition in class; in addition the UH Writing Center is available to provide you with great writing tips and semester-long support: http://www.uh.edu/writecen/. Late papers will not be accepted.

Participation/Attendance
Participation is essential to this class. There will be attendance checks and may be occasional pop quizzes on the readings. In addition, you will be required to view some films outside of class. There will be one museum fieldtrip followed by a Blackboard discussion (postings). Failure to attend five or more classes will result in an F grade.

Class presentation
You will be assigned (randomly) to examine one of six art topics (listed on the syllabus). You will coordinate with others doing that topic in order to avoid overlap. On the data specified, you will give a 10 – 15 minute presentation to the class on that topic, letting us know about the art form's history, unique features, and notable figures. The presentation must include visuals; a handy application to use for this is MS Powerpoint. You will turn in a (minimum) 500 word report that summarizes your presentation. The report and slide presentation must be submitted to the instructor via email before class begins on the day you present.

Final Paper
Instructions for the final paper will be posted on Blackboard (within Powerpoint lecture notes) and discussed in class. The final paper will be developed in 4 stages; you must complete all four to receive full credit for your final submission (10 points will be taken off for each stage not completed). Late papers will not be accepted.
